Description of trails	The trails are situated on the southern edge of Camrose, along the picturesque Stoney Creek valley. All trails are set for both classic &amp; skate skiing. Many of the trails are one way. The perimeter route is about 15 km long and climbs up past the biathlon centre. The trails are generally very undulating with some steep uphill &amp; downhill sections. Some of the downhill sections can appear quite daunting but because the trails are wide, they are not as tricky as they may appear from the top. The easiest route is to take the Rotary Trail that follows the valley floor quite closely. The main trailhead is at the Stoney Creek Centre campsite. Here there is a large heated building opposite the luge hill &amp; old ski jump. The washrooms in this building are usually open during the day and there is ample room to change. On the lower level is the Camrose Ski Club's waxing room which is open for events and has a combination lock entrance for members. There is a 2.25 km lighted loop for night skiing from this centre. The SE part of the trail system can also be accessed from the biathlon range.

Mike's Two Skis Worth

I prefer to start from the Stony Creek Centre because at least you have some heated washrooms and a place to change. Don't count on finding the waxing room open unless local club members are present. Many years ago, there used to be a tearoom on the upper level which made for a nice break between skis. I don't usually recommend starting out from the Biathlon Centre because the gate to the gun club range / biathlon range is only open when they are in use.

Many of the trails can appear a bit challenging for novice skiers but luckily, they are wide and some of the steepest hills can be bypassed. The trails are signed as a series of distance loops marked out from either the Stoney Creek centre or from the Biathlon Range. The major trail junctions are also numbered. Despite this the trails can be a bit confusing owing to the number of cut-offs and parallel trails, so take a map.

For a nice challenging ski, I find the route around the perimeter trails a good option. The route can be shortened at many points by taking one of the numerous cut-off loops. To start I usually head north from the Stoney Creek Centre past some houses and circle back along the east side of the creek behind the ski jump hill and head south down the valley under the railway trestle and road bridge. The climb up to the biathlon range can be a bit of a grunt but you are rewarded with a swift return along a ravine back to the main trail systems. After passing under the railway again, keep left and head back via a few more ups & downs on the west side of the creek to the clubhouse.

For a gentler ski take the Rotary trail along the valley floor (more or less) and pass under the railway & road until you reach a ploughed service road before heading back.

The Olle Uffda Loppet is one of the more arduous courses on the loppet circuit. The main event is normally two 15 km loops around the trail system broadly following the perimeter trail up to & back past the biathlon range.
